The reason why my mother, Virginia, wrote the book the Rules of Spelling is because she wanted people to know how to spell correctly without using computers or spelling gadgets. She knew that they could take a computer and spelling gadgets away from you, but what you did know in your head they could not take away from you. She meant nobody can take knowledge away from you. She was a caring person who liked to help other people in many ways, and she wanted people to get the education they needed to survive in the world.
